Anger Management

ARTICLE

Human being is a very beautiful and fascinating creature created by the almighty. Everyday we learn overwhelming facts about ourselves. We are able to think and express ourselves in a way that the other creatures cannot. God along with a perfect body has gifted us a mind that can think, work, care and understand others.

We are lucky to be able to express our emotions. Love, happiness, fear, sorrow, anger, respect are some feelings that all of us experience. All emotions are important, but amongst all of these, anger is a strong emotion. It might be necessary but being angry every time and creating fear in others is not something anyone should be proud of.

It is required sometimes but in limited dose particularly when the elders have put their children on the right path or for those who want to protect their loved ones against evil forces, but undoubtedly unbridled anger can be very dangerous. Some people have difficulty in controlling their temper, they get pissed off even at petty things. They are unable to manage it.

The generation brought up on animations such as Angry birds, computer games based on the themes of war and killing spit this venom at the drop of a hat.

The ambience at home should be peaceful not violent. An angry person is unable to utilize his potential. If it is not checked in the right time, it may cause irreparable damage to us. Let's build our lives with the bricks made of smiles and happiness. Let not the anger gnaw into the foundation of life.

MOVIE REVIEW

This Hindi movie tells the story of a former athlete, now a working mother, who sets out to recapture her former glory. Jaya, the heroine of "Panga," a working mom with a sickly little boy and a smiling husband, cooks, does laundry, shoos her child onto the school bus. She hovers and worries. And is unhappy.

Once upon a time, though, Jaya (Kangana Ranaut) was somebody: the captain of India's women's kabaddi team. But she quit playing when her husband's job moved the family to Bhopal from Delhi.

Can she make a comeback?

That's the question in this lightly feminist film, which shifts from being a domestic dramedy to an underdog sports tale, a favorite genre of Indian movies. The link is family: Will Jaya's husband, Prashant (Jassie Gill), and little boy, Adi (Yagya Bhasin), support her return to kabaddi? Even if she has to move away from them to practice with the team?

Directed by Ashwiny Iyer Tiwari, "Panga" has an understated realism — about the tempos of family life and the Indian middle class. The drama, too, is understated: bumps in a road paved with good will rather than a clash of values and goals.

CHANGING NEIGHBOURHOOD

Our neighbourhood has changed a lot since we were born, isn't it? It's just that we don't remember much of the things. From the aunty next doors to the uncle living in the opposite house, everything has changed. They no longer visit your home and stay for hours talking to your mother and father. They just seem to ignore you while walking on the street.

Well, we also changed too much. We also don't bother to greet them while walking. Change in society has brought changes in the relations of neighbours too. We all seem too busy with the work we have.

Then the number of houses in the society has also increased. Better transport facilities are available and more shopping malls have emerged in the society. Where does the extra space for all these come? Well, the trees have reduced in number in our society for plays for all the shopping malls, etc.

On the roads too, with more transport facilities, more vehicles have come. The pollution has increased at a rate like never before. The crime has also reached its peak height and you can see so many reports of crimes in just a minute. The population has ever increase and there is a cloud everywhere.

But, however it is, this is our own world and we only have to improve its condition.

STORY CORNER

THE MAGIC STONE

A long time ago there was a city named Ranpur where people use to live happily. But one person named Blacknight was always unhappy. Because in Ranpur everyone had magic but he did not.

One day he was reading a magic book. In that it was written that there is one way from which a person who does not have magic can get it. So he read the way. The way was a stone which would give him the magic he wanted. And it was mentioned that the stone was in a red cave. Blacknight did not understand anything he said, "What! a red cave". He was in shock to know that it was a red cave. Because he had never heard or read about the red cave or seen it. And the book was the most popular book in Ranpur so why was it saying that the stone was in a red cave. He thought that a red cave, then he remembered that when he was small he got lost and he was trying to get the way back home and that time he had magic powers so he read the book further it was written that the stone takes the power from people who have it. And gives it to them who don't have it.

So then Blacknight closed the book and went to search the stone. He jumped out of the room's window and flew into the sky on his magic broom and went to search the red cave. He had to pass cold mountains, volcanoes, deep oceans, Scary places and many other difficulties and dangers but he did not stop and did everything which would help him further. And after a long journey he found the red cave. He said "At Last! I have found it, I found the red cave". He was very glad to find it. Then he went inside the cave. As all the caves are dark from inside, unlike all of them this one was not dark from inside but it was full of different colours of lights. Blacknight thought this was very strange. Because last time when he had come here it was black from inside, he walked further. Then he saw something shining. He said "What is that" he walked closer, to his surprise he found the stone. He picked it up then he read the book. It was written that he has to take away some other persons magic. Then he went back to Ranpur to take someone's magic. When he reached Ranpur he thought who's magic should he take first then he said "Why should I take only one person's magic when I can take many peoples". So he started destroying each and everything. Then he remembered without magic, people would be dead only some children would be alive and they would not have anybody they would be alone. He too had lost his family, friends everyone he knew. He thought that it was very cruel of him to do whatever he was doing. But just that time the stone said "No! wait don't you think it was cruel of them when they killed your family friends and who even you knew." Blacknight again went into thoughts then he said "Yes you are right" when he was just going to speak further, an another voice said "No! wait do not listen to him he is telling you the wrong things if you do this would you get your family friends and who you knew, back?" Blacknight asked "who are you" the voice said "I am the ground below you" Blacknight understood that the ground was right so he threw the stone the stone broke and everyone lived happily.

नन्हा पौधा

छोटा सा एक बीज
दबा हुआ ज़मीन के नीचे,
सो रहा था गहरी नींद
मैंने उसे जगाया;
रोज पानी देकर उसे उठाया
एक दिन पौधा बनकर,
अलसाया सा सोकर
ज़मीन से वो ऊपर आया ॥
देखकर मुझे मुस्काया
मैंने प्यार से उसे सहलाया,
कुछ ही दिनों में भरकर ढेरों फूल
उसने मुझे समझाया;
अगर करोगे अच्छे काम,
तो पाओगे सुन्दर इनाम ॥
(ईशा मित्तल , I-A)

Vacation is over,
To enjoy winter's fervor
Children came to school
Wearing layers of wool.
To energize their mind
was the goal
Teachers presented an assembly with soul.
Some danced, some sang
some acted a story
with a moral bang.
The assembly bright-
ened their day
With the zeal to work
after holidays.

POEMS

Christmas- A Haiku

Cold breezes blowing,
Christmas is arriving soon,
Let's all be prepared.

Set up Christmas trees,
And put some ornaments
too,
Top it off with stars.

Bake some sweet cookies ,
While sipping hot chocolate,
Mmm.., it's so tasty.

Now it's Christmas Eve,
Keep some cookies for Santa,
And some milk there too.

Santa Claus has come,
Down the chimney to give
gifts,
And eat all those treats.

Finally Christmas,
Time to open all those gifts,
Yay! Let's celebrate.

Oh! How very sad!
This year's Christmas is over,
Let's wait for next year's.

- Denzel Deepak George, VII-B

Hurtful Words

I came cheerful with a smile
But you hunt me down
You leave me sad
Sore with a frown.

Words which are mean
I still stand tight
Words leave me sore
Every day and night.

But I won't weep
I won't take a tremble
When you are mean
I won't start to crumble.

Never will I sob
Or will I shiver
I will fight without fear
And I won't give up.
